

Titan AUV is an undergraduate student project from the California State University, Fullerton. This will be the first year participating in the AUVSI Foundation RoboSub competition and we are excited to be participating as this competition provides students with hands-on experience in artificial intelligence, image processing and underwater navigation. When we first began this project, we were not sure what to expect but we have made great progress and are looking forward to seeing the results our vehicle will produce on the course.